

Hey, Employer! Have You Heard About Evan Mintz? No? Read This Column.

EVAN MINTZ, 3L

Opinion Columnist

Are you sick of hiring the same old law graduates? Are top-of-the-class journal editors making you look bad? Are tall, attractive new hires driving you crazy?

There has got to be a better way!

Well now there is, with Evan. That's right, Evan! The hip new law graduate all the cool legal firms and non-profits are talking about.

But what is Evan?

Evan is a fresh, new graduate from the Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law. Wow, what a mouthful! It must be impressive. But all you need to know is that Cardozo is the number one school in New York City for Intellectual Property Law. And it just so happens that Evan is graduating with a concentration in Intellectual Property and Communications Law.

That is like having the best law student in New York City!

Not only that, but Evan is also graduating with a concentration in Constitutional Law and Rights.

It is like you'll have two law students in one. What a deal!

But that's not all!

Now how many times has this happened to you? You hired a recent law graduate and gave her an easy, introductory assignment, only to have her write it in a completely different style from what you're used to. This is what happens when you hire graduates who held lots of so-called "impressive" externships and internships at different firms all over the place. You think you're going to get something great, but really it is just a jumble of conflicting writing styles and research methods. Why, it could take forever to replace all those engrained habits! Think of all the important family events you would have to miss to fix that huge mess.

Well, not with Evan!

Evan comes free of any school-year externships, ready to learn your own personal writing and research preferences.

Without annoying experience at other firms to get in the way, Evan had time to take hours upon hours of law classes, each more boring than the last. But Evan did it so you won't have to. And in a world where the laws can change with nothing more than a vote in the House, a vote in the Senate, and signature by the President, you'll be glad to have a fresh new hire who is up to date on law.

But wait, there's more!

Evan isn't just a recent law graduate, but a full-fledged actual human being with hobbies and talents that can benefit any office. When you hire

Evan, you are guaranteed semi-regular leftovers of home-baked banana bread, a sympathetic ear to listen to your stories, and comedic slapstick pratfalls that will keep the office in stitches and Evan in only a minor wrist brace. And much, much more!

Not only that, but when you hire Evan, you hire a lifeline to the future! You won't have to concern yourself with learning blogs or Twitters or Facebooks, because Evan is a social media expert. He has not one, but two Twitter feeds, plus a blog. Wow! Working with Evan would be working with a real life celebrity!

And if you hire Evan now, you will get a free upgrade! Choose one of the many upgrade packages, such as:

The Political Package: Follow the ups and downs of the democratic process as Evan volunteers nights and weekends on a local political campaign for an office that has less actual power than the night manager at CVS. Vicariously experience the West Wing-esque excitement from the comfort of your own desk.

The Music Package: Evan will travel to no fewer than three music festivals per year, returning with tales about sunburns, Brian Eno, and Austin. All stories will be properly attuned to subtly reveal enough drug experiences to be entertaining, but not so much as to warrant investigation by the human resources department.

The Depression Package: Writhe in schadenfreudic joy while Evan dangerously slides into a routine of drinking and sleepless nights as he confronts the reality that this is all there is to life. Take comfort in your well-established niche as you get to watch Evan hit his quarterlife crisis — hard — and realize that he will never become what he wanted to be when he was younger.

All of this can be yours today! How much would you be willing to pay for this amazing offer? $100,000? Pfsh, that won't even pay for a law degree. $200,000? With an amazing product like this, the sky is the limit.

But right now, we're having a special offer. If you hire Evan today, we'll throw in not one, but two certifications, a Juris Doctorate from the top IP law school in New York City, the clean slate plan, regular blog and Twitter updates about your office, the hobbies and personality system, and the free upgrade package, all for the low, low, insanely low price of $40,000 per year (plus benefits).

Why, we're practically giving him away!

You can't pass up this once in a lifetime opportunity! So contact your human resources representatives or hiring attorneys, and tell them you want Evan today!

Resumes are standing by.